

Election Integrity & The Physicist

Dr. Douglas G. Frank is a world-renowned physicist with sixty peer-reviewed scientific publications, including cover and feature articles in the world's leading scientific journals. His Ph.D. is in surface-electroanalytical chemistry, which combines chemistry and physics techniques for the manipulation and analysis of molecules on surfaces. He left academics in 1996, and has since done extensive consulting, inventing, and technical manufacturing, building electron microscopes, laser scanners, and precision manufacturing and control devices.

He is internationally known for his contributions to the bowling sport and manufacturing industry and helped to establish a special school for extraordinarily gifted youngsters near Cincinnati, Ohio, where he served as the Math & Science department chair for twenty-five years.

Recently, Dr. Frank was featured in two of Mike Lindell's documentaries, ("Scientific Proof" and "Absolute Interference") because he discovered several of the algorithms being employed to manipulate our elections.

Since December of 2020, Dr. Frank has been working incessantly for election reform with grassroots teams in about forty states. He's met in person with Secretaries of State, Attorney Generals, dozens of legislators, and hundreds of local election officials, and is widely known for his informative and engaging presentations.

Dr. Frank built upon Kurt Hyde's theory from 2010 that suggested that U.S. Census data could be used to artificially inflate voter registration databases across the country. He asserts that voter registration databases were indeed inflated during the 2020 General Election and theorizes an algorithm was developed at the state level and applied to the voter registration in each individual county in a state, because voter turnout of the election was predictable to an unusually high level of accuracy.
